

Bank of America, New York:

Novo Arts completed fourteen floors of hand-painted glass for Bank of America's office in New York. The glass, special etched to support the paint, was carefully painted with various designs, one on each floor, to add a burst of color and something different from paintings or prints for their corporate office. The glass was installed along with metal diecuts, which added dimension to the work. After completion, Novo oversaw the installation.

